Pamela is a painter and sculptor.

She is mostly self-taught and began doing art as a child. She has a long history of various art jobs: graphic artist, sculptor, patineur, specialty painter and muralist.

This is an artist with mastery in many medias: oil, acrylic, watercolor, pencil, pastel, clay, woodcarving, wax and patina for bronze.

"In 2008 I began using recycled objects in my art. I had a friend who had a lot of cigar boxes. I thought they would be great for interactive art. I see art as a verb, an action word, and rather than having people limited to observation, I wanted them to touch and get inside the box."

Pamela has painted murals over the years. The most recent was in Trout Creek, MT at "The Shire of Montana," where her murals blend in with the landscape around an underground hobbit-like house.
